Dear Mr. Patrick.

My request is not vague. It is not general. It is both exceedingly precise and extraordinarily specific. Using nothing more than the actual words of my request it is possible to tell whether any object in the world is a responsive record or not. Please follow these steps:

1. Is the object a PDF? If no, stop.
2. Was the PDF created by LA Airport police in response to a request for records made non-exempt by SB1421? If no, stop.
3. If yes, it's responsive and I need to obtain a copy in response to this request.

That seems pretty precise to me, but perhaps you have some more good faith questions. Please advise.

Also, this is about the third time you've asserted that I wish to "to maintain privacy and confidentiality." I don't believe this to be the case, and if you'd care to tell me either how you got that idea or why you keep saying it without having got the idea anywhere, I'd be interested to learn.

Dear Mr. Patrick!

As I said, here are the records I am seeking:

Today I am seeking copies of all PDFs created by LA Airport Police in response to requests for records made non-exempt by SB1421. Since these have already been released by LAWA in response to CPRA requests any potential exemptions have been waived and therefore I believe the law requires LAWA to supply them promptly.

I hope this clarifies things for you.

Hi Mr. Patrick,

thanks for your answer. However, this is not an allowed response under the CPRA. As I said, I am seeking copies of certain records. You're not claiming that they're exempt and so your options under the law are to provide copies or to provide download links.

I don't know whether you've already provided me with copies or not but I don't see that it matters. In fact I am aware of at least one published appellate case, the name of which you can have the City Attorney find for you as they're being paid for that sort of thing, in which the court explicitly held that, for perfectly rational reasons, requesters have a right to request and receive copies of records copies of which they already have.

So please reconsider your response and choose one of the options legally open to you.

Thanks, and appreciative, as always, of your good faith!

On Friday, November 1, 2019 at 12:38 PM LAWA IMTG provided you with an email advising that a 14 day extension was necessary. Based on a review of your request, there are no additional documents to provide you. APD has already provided you with copies of all PDFs created by APD with redactions pursuant to Penal Code Section 832.7, subdivisions (b)(5)&(6) in response to requests for records made non-exempt by SB1421.

This completes this request.
